The first step in the process is to identify the problem. This involves gathering information about the situation and the people involved. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to analyze it. This involves breaking the problem down into its components and understanding how they are related. The third step is to develop a plan. This involves deciding on the best way to solve the problem and the steps that need to be taken. The fourth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the plan into action and making any necessary adjustments. The final step is to evaluate the results. This involves checking to see if the problem has been solved and if the solution is sustainable.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, and by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. The increase in obesity is not limited to the United States. In fact, the prevalence of obesity has increased in every country in the world, with the most dramatic increases occurring in developing countries. In 1975, only 1 percent of the population in developing countries was obese, but by 2000, that number had risen to 10 percent. The increase in obesity is a global phenomenon, and it is a major public health concern.
